INCREASING INTEREST.

Full Houses Every Night to Hear the Great Evangelist.

NINE PROFESSIONS.

The Third Week More Fruitful than Either of the Other Two.

Last Tuesday night was a great one of the revival services which have been going on for three weeks at the Methodist church—in fact it was the greatest of all.

Rev. P. H. Davis chose for his theme, "Almost Persuaded," and delivered a most powerful and convincing sermon. The audience was spellbound and seemed to be forgetful of everything but the subject which was so skillfully and logically handled by the preacher. Mr. Davis was intensely in earnest and spoke by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, which seemed to have taken possession of the entire assemblage. When the evangelist called for the unconverted to come forward the congregation arose and stood in holy awe and expectancy for half an hour. It was a most solemn moment and it was evident that there would be a great manifestation of the power of God. The hesitancy which had for awhile kept back many from renouncing sin gave way and nine went forward and made profession of religion. Fears of joy were shed by parents and friends over the victory won after weeks of prayer, and a holy atmosphere spread over the great audience.

When one of the leading members of the church was asked yesterday if there was any talk about closing the meeting, his face beaming with joy, he replied: "No; the meeting has just begun." Greater things are yet expected, and the meetings will continue indefinitely.

Mr. Davis has had every encouragement from the start. Denominational lines have altogether disappeared and the different ministers have manifested their love to the Master's call and been faithful in their attendance and shown their desire to take part in the work when they are called upon. The morning meetings have been unusually largely attended and all indications point to a great blessing upon the churches, building them up in strength and arousing an almost unknown enthusiasm. Many who were supposed to be indifferent as to their soul's salvation have been aroused from their stupor and made public profession.

MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

Mr. Ewing Issues Address to Executive Committee and Other Officials.

WHERE TO SHIP.

Advises Planters to Listen to Their Leaders, and Not to Men On Outside.

General Manager Ewing has issued the following letter:

Glenraven, Tenn., Jan. 23, 1906. To the Executive Committee, District Chairmen, Salesmen and Supervisors.

My Dear Sirs:

I cannot too strongly impress upon you the importance of urging our members to comply with certain clauses in our circular letter of the 16th inst. Prizers and storage house men, who have not signed the contracts of the association as they are printed, should not be considered for a moment by a member of the association as a suitable party to do business with. It will be difficult for the association to properly systematize its business, unless this is rigidly carried out, yet certain members (I am glad to say a few), although staunch adherents to our cause, have already blindly shipped tobacco to storage houses with which we have no contracts. I urge that you immediately take this matter in hand and inform every member in your reach of the necessity for requiring exactly the same thing of every prizing house, and exactly the same thing of every storage house with which we have business relations.

This is business consistency, as well as simple justice to ourselves and the well meaning ones of them. I would also call your attention to the clauses, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 in the same letter, which read as follows: "I think it very important to call attention to the rivalry between the various prizing houses, and the rivalry between the various storage houses. It is the full intention of the association that no one market or locality shall have any advantage of another, and that tobacco stored at a small town, on a railroad track, would sell just as well as tobacco stored at a larger town, provided, always, the type samples are sent to our sales places, in accordance with the association's instructions. We are aware that many prizing
